DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's amendment of the independent claims reflects adding the limitation "an overhead portion of the message". This limitation is addressed in the rejections herein.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

3. Claims 1-6, 8-9, 11, 15-25, and 29-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,456,854 B1 to Chern et al.
4. In regards to claims 1 and 17, Chern discloses a method and system from tracking mobile telephone devices (column 1 line 57-59). Chern discloses that when a user requests information the hand set provides the location of the handset to the server (column 4, lines 47-48). This meets the limitation of "generating a message from a mobile device, the message having significance independent of reporting a geographical location of the mobile device; and attaching to an overhead portion of the message an automatically generated location stamp indicating the geographical location of the mobile device as an origin of the message.” Referring to the limitation “attaching to an overhead portion of the message...” Chern inherently teaches including the location information in the header of the message because Chern teaches sending the messages with the location included in it (see Figs. 4-6).

5. In regards to claim 2, 3, 18 and 20, Chern discloses the system uses a GPS which determines location in terms of parameters such as latitude, and longitude (Chern: column 4, lines 23-29).

6. In regards to claim 4, Chern discloses an application, which provides driving directions to the user (Chern: column 4, lines 57-67).

7. In regards to claims 5, 6, 21, and 22, Chern discloses the user request the business or service type vocally or via keypad entry (see column 5, lines 13-14).

8. In regards to claims 8 and 23, Chern discloses “the handset user requests driving directions to the destination, and the handset relays the requests to the server” (see column 4, lines 58-60).

9. In regards to claims 9, 19, and 24, Chern discloses a mobile telephone (Chern: column 1, lines 57-59).

Art Unit: 2132

10. In regards to claim 11 and 25, Chern teaches that the user may set a location filter, for example, that requires returned selections be within a certain maximum number of miles of the user's current location(see column 5, lines 20-23).

11. In regards to claim 15 and 29, the web server validates a user name and password (see column 6, lines 60-67).

12. In regards to claims 16 and 30, Chern discloses a first receiver at the web server that receives the GPS location information from the mobile unit and the recorder which stores the latitude and longitude information received from the mobile unit. The Browser device connects the to web server and accepts the transmission f the GPS information from a second receiver. The displayer presents the GPS information on the display of the browser device (Chern: column 8, lines 21-42).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

13. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2132

14. Claims 12-14, and 26-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No 6,456,854 B1 to Chern et al as applied to claim 1-6, 8-9, 11, 15-25, and 29-30 above, and further in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,067,529 to Ray et al.

15. Chern discloses a method and system from tracking mobile telephone devices (Chern: column 1 line 57-59). Chern discloses that when a user requests information the hand set provides the location of the handset to the server (Chern: column 4, lines 47-48). Chern, however, does not disclose "wherein the action is a delivery," "a charge to an account," or "the charge is a credit card charge."

16. Referring to the instant claims, Ray teaches that when a consumer makes a purchase, the sales terminal can generate a short message along with the detailed purchase information (see Abstract). A menu can be displayed on the phone and the consumer can select the desired credit card number and request a receipt. The credit card number can be sent along with the transport address or alias address to the sales terminal for authorization of the credit card number (Ray: column 3, lines 52-67; column 4, lines 1-14).

17. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the method of sending a location identifier with a request from a mobile phone as disclosed in Chern with the method of sending a credit card number across a mobile phone as disclosed in Ray. One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to combine the method of sending a location identifier with a request from a mobile phone as disclosed in Chern with the method of sending a credit card number across a mobile phone as taught in Ray in order to provide substantially immediate purchase information to consumers in a paper-less environment (see Ray column 2, lines 5-7).
